

W.P.A. Project Number 39

Leavenworth Golf Course

June 6,7,8, 2004

How do we explain this? All our research indicated that we were totally safe from the rain. We had an F in charge and it never had rained on anyone with an F. We were in Eastern Washington where the chance of rain was much less. How could this be? But I get ahead of myself.

The Fankhausers were ready for us when we arrived. We had a great party and walked over to dinner. A wonderful start. We arrived at the Leavenworth Golf Course in the rain. Confident that it would stop, we began and were rewarded in 3 or 4 holes by a cessation of that unwelcome feature. The rest of the game was in nice weather, the afternoon barbeque was great in fellowship and nice weather. Tuesday dawned bright and sunny and the Kahler Glen Golf Course welcomed us to a beautiful setting and tough holes. Again I get ahead of myself.

Back to the perplexing problem. After considerable revue it has been decided that the problem the Fankhausers have is nothing more that they live too close to the Karlsons. Now that we have officially changed Mike and Colleen's names to Karlson, the problem should go away. Thanks to Jack and Jeanne for a wonderful time. You were great.

Burt and Mary Haskins were guests and expect to be members at our next event.

The golf game resulted in a tie for women's low gross between Colleen Karlson and Joan Shaplik. Low net went to Lois Melville. Not to be outdone by spouse, Mike Karlson walked off with low gross and Matt Wright copped low net for the men.

A few incidents merit the attention of the assessor. Wanda Robinson, Eileen Johnson and Aurelia Odell were of little faith and cancelled out on their opportunity to score in the event. The outhouses deserve some attention. Frank Krook hit his one errant drive of the day into the outhouse, then occupied by Howard Odell. Mel Melville did his thing in the ladies venue and left the lid up-probably on purpose. Perhaps the outhouse management difficulties are just because we haven't too much experience with courses with outhouses..

Tuesdays Scramble at Kahler Glen resulted in a 5 under performance in nine holes for the team of Mary Haskins, Cay Bell, Mike Carlson and Don West, ending the string of wins by Lois Melville who couldn't overcome having Jack Frisk on her team..
